cigaretts anyway and they did and are doing so how.

The report went abroad after that meeting that some of the plug tobacco manufacturers were so disgusted that they would like to dispose of their properties. This report had no foundation in fact, but it got to the ears of one of the best known law firms in this city, a firm that has fone the legal work necessary in the formation of several combines, and the old scheme of forming a plug tobacco combine with English ing a plug tobacco combine with English ing a plug tobacco combine with English capital benind it was revived. The situation was gone over quietly to find out if the properties could be acquired. All inquiries were made in the most guarded manner, and through persons who had no connection with the law firm. What was learned was considered to be encouraging enough for one of the firm to pack off to Euerpe to see what chance there was of securing the necessary capital. It was found, at first, that England capitalists would not look at American investments. not look at American investments through a telescope. They feared that sryan would be elected, and were tak-Bryan would be elected, and were taking no chances. More recently, however, float the enterprise.

The story comes from Cincinnati that Charles M. Lindley, of that city, and Colonel Joseph B. Hughes, of Hamilton, O., are the men who have been intrusted. with the work of securing the options on the properties. Neither of these men is known to plug tobacco manufacturers in this city, but it was learned yester-day from a man connected with the law firm mentioned—the real promoters of the deal—that two Western men have been engaged to secure options on the Drummond and Liggitt & Myers properties. It was said yesterday that Liggitt & Myers had practically named a figure at which they would sell, but that the Drummond Company had declined an offer of $7,500,000. Asido from these two plants, the one that it was difficult to get an option on was that of the Pierre Lorillard Tebacco Company. It was not possible until recently for any one to acquire this pron-crty, even if the owners cared to sell. When the preferred stock of the company When the preferred stock of the company was put on the market a few years ago, the agreement was that the Lorillards should retain the common stock for at least three years. That time has now expired, so that should the covers care to sell there is nothing to prevent them, it was said yesterday that an option on the Lorillard plant had been obtained.
